

Caskets

Caskets vary from coffins primarily in their shape; they are often rectangular rather than shaped tapering to the head and foot following the contours of the body. Some caskets are imported from North America and are usually constructed in timber and have a mattress bed within and a hinged lid. Caskets can also be constructed in metal. The cost of any casket will be confirmed at the time of enquiry as they fluctuate.

White softwood 'Lucia' casket - £1,045.00. This casket is particularly beneficial when mourners are visiting the chapel with an open casket. The lid of the casket is much deeper than other coffins and as such the deceased appears to lie higher in the casket.
